The goal of the NNPRFTC Accreditation Standards is to drive compassionate, team-based, patient-centered, clinical excellence in the training of postgraduate nurse practitioners, while promoting rigorous peer review, quality assurance methods, evidence-based practice, and innovation and dissemination of knowledge.

In developing our Accreditation Standards, the National Nurse Practitioners Residency and Fellowship Training Consortium has had the privilege of working with leading national experts in academic healthcare, postgraduate nurse practitioner training, and federally qualified healthcare centers. These dedicated and talented individuals donated their time and thoughtful insights to create this comprehensive set of programmatic accreditation standards. In developing the Accreditation Standards, the authors also provided specifications for the types of evidence needed to document a program's adherence to each component of a standard.

With gratitude and appreciation, the NNPRFTC acknowledges the following ten authors and four contributors to the Accreditation Standards:
